

Ashton Wilson is the Manager of Events at the Golden Spike Event Center. Her duties include planning and conducting the Fair and county produced events, as well as overseeing the office staff. Although Ashton has only been in the professional event world for a short time, she is no stranger to the industry. Her family has been producing rodeos for 30 years, many of which are held at the Golden Spike Event Center. Those who know Ashton would describe her as organized, driven, and passionate. Between her career and the family business, Ashton doesn't have much free time. She considers hunting, fishing, rodeoing, or just being with her husband and family time well spent. She is often teased for being an old soul because of her love of classic country music and traditional values.
